

Andy (Andrew Peter) Hewson

Managing Director of HEINEKEN Cambodia

Andy became Managing Director of HEINEKEN Cambodia in August 2023, bringing with him over a decade of experience with the company across the Asia Pacific. He has held leadership roles in Singapore, New Caledonia, and the Solomon Islands, and also chairs HEINEKEN'S APAC (Building Our Own Sustainable Talent) BOOST talent development programs. Before HEINEKEN, Andy worked in Australia & New Zealand with other major consumer goods companies such as Diageo & Goodman Fielder.

Since 2023, he has served as Managing Director of HEINEKEN Cambodia with a responsibility to drive the business and lead a total transformation through a new growth strategy, a people-centered leadership style, and a focus on disciplined execution in alignment with Brew A Better Cambodia sustainability and responsibility strategy, aligned with HEINEKEN's global Brew A Better World goals.

“I have been impressed by the government’s commitment to strengthening public-private dialogue - a critical driver of sustainable growth that enables businesses to raise concerns directly for government attention and solutions. Sustainable growth requires a whole-of-society approach, and IBC's leading role in progressing more public-private dialogues is crucial in bridging the gap between policies and businesses on many critical issues, including tax, governance, enforcement, etc. Equally important is the platform IBC provides for companies to build and strengthen connections across sectors, bringing like-minded professionals together to unlock new synergies for greater impact.

Last year, we celebrated 30 years of HEINEKEN in Cambodia. We take pride in the significant socioeconomic contributions we make and continue to engage the Government to shape a more sustainable, responsible, and fairer competitive landscape for our industry. Together with our stakeholders, we continue working towards a better Cambodia.”
